📇 PROFILE

I am enthusiastic in applying design thinking to real-world projects and empowering people through the Human-Centered Design method. I appreciate uncovering user requirements, understanding stakeholder connections, and developing a unified experience that blends the problem-solving part of design with profound empathy for the user.

There ae millions of people who are quite happy designing websites and building web applications for various bussiness and enterprises. That's Ok,but it's not for me. I didn't learn to code to make dull Stuff; I learnt to code to create killer websites and applications for intriguing people.
